The Hon. Boyd Winchester Repudiates Hardin.

DOESN'T WANT "WAT."

HON. BOYD WINCHESTER REPUDIATES HARDIN.

A Fair Sample of the "Harmony (?) That Prevails in the Democratic Household in Kentucky—Repudiated By Honest Men.

bated breath and whispering humbleness, must "lay on the altar of the party" their mature judgment, their enlightened conscience, admit the right is wrong and the wrong is right, being thankful that "a merciful Providence fashioned them holier on purpose that they might their principles swaller," and fall in behind General Hardin in a way that might excite the envy of Noah going up into the ark with his "creeping things" behind him.

One of the most important functions of party organization is the adoption of a platform or declaration of principles. This is a possible and natural convention composed of delegates chosen for the purpose. A party appeals to the voter with a platform, which is a statement of the policy it desires to be carried out. Candidates are selected as representatives of the party which laid down, and their acceptance of the nominations is justly regarded as their public indorsement of the doctrine set forth. The will of the party finally and deliberately expressed may be wrong; but it is difficult to conceive of it being so very mischievous as the recognition of the right of one who holds its commission, or a committee formed to defend its interests and execute its orders, to nominate a candidate for the office, assuming the power to rewrite a platform. Any attempt to thwart the will of the party, regularly and fairly ascertained, by disingenuous or fraudulent devices is not a question of personality, but of justice, which respects rights and enforcement of law.

If the candidate cannot subordinate his convictions in pursuance of his party declaration, then he should decline the commission in the principles of which he does not share, and the purposes of which he cannot conscientiously advance. To employ the power of a position to injure those to whom one is mainly indebted for his appointment that power is an act of ingratitude as monstrous as if Puffin had sold his feathers in the very armor in which he had invested him for the destruction of Hector.

It is too late to protest about the currency question being improperly injected into a state campaign; that is res judicata. The Democratic masses, largely inspired by General Hardin, and the convention at their behest by an overwhelming majority made it the paramount question. However some may criticize such political action as unreasoning and disastrous to the best interests of state government, nine voters out of ten in a state election cast their ballots in unquestioning allegiance to parties based on National issues. It is scarcely worth while to note the contention by others that the fiscal and financial plan of the state platform is not a sound money declaration. This antiphrastic achievement reaches a pitch of moral idiosyncrasy and peculiar woodenness or purblindness of intellectual vision that it requires not so much argumentative refutation or censure as medical treatment. Then the appeal to party loyalty comes from those who have already betrayed it is a mockery and an insult. There are prices to dear to be paid even for victory. Only to vulgar judgments is success the ultimate criterion of wisdom and right.

To the sound money Democrats may be commended the aphorism: "The sun should not set upon our anger, neither should he rise upon our confidence."

History detests dupes and treats them almost as accomplices, and the sound money Democrats are preparing to support General Hardin will be certain to share with mawalling penitence their mistake.

If General Hardin is elected it insures beyond any doubt the choice of a free silver Senator, and will turn the state over to be saddled, bridled and ridden by the cohorts of free and unlimited coinage, with no chance for the party had spoken most insistently, and the only raison d'etre of the earnest contest in the election of delegates and over the building of the platform in the convention. "Whatever opinions you may hold on economic questions, you should lay them on the altar of the party for its safety and success," is the remarkable request of the committee. This grim reaper is clothed in the garb of good motives and amiable intentions, and we are ready to believe that it is a sincere application of the maxim of Diocles: "If I hold it, I will not be a slave to it." The basket hasn't been found yet.

As to Whalen, he was found in the adjoining county, sleeping as sweetly as a babe, without even a ruffle in his shirt bosom, but awfully dry.

Last night about 8 o'clock he was in the neighborhood of the Ball Park, encroaching on the Street Railway track, when Motor No. 1 came sweeping along with Engineer Gillespie at the throttle.

When about half a square west of Prospect street he noticed a man lying on the track, and doffed his cap to him.

As quick as a flash he threw off the power, put on the brake, reversed the motor, and in doing so the trolley pole flew off, and the fender of the car struck the "Mockingbird," dragging him about six feet.

He was gathered out of the dust, and Dr. Pangburn, assisted by Dr. Barover, found that both collar bones were broken, as were also the second and third ribs on his right side, while a large gash was cut in the corner of one of his eyes, and his face was all bruised and scratched up.

He was taken home last night, and will lie all right in a short while.

At once it occurred to the sound money Democrats whence came the power of the committee to alter, or rather expunge, the most vital declaration made by the convention, and order them to alter or surrender their profound convictions, having the indorsement and seal of over 400 majority out of a total 877 votes. Why not command the one-third minority, headed by the candidate for Governor, to perform this act? No; he neither yields a word nor blots a line; his convictions are as solid as the rock of Gibraltar.

The fight is on, and who would venture to "touch" General Hardin's sensitive temper? The influence of the mass of the people is the conscience of his mind, a trust from Providence which he must not sacrifice to any man or to any set of living men. But the rank and file of the sound money Democrats, with

"It is so soon that I am done for, I wonder what I was begun for."

To retain or deserve public confidence and support the Democratic party must stand by the old ethics and rules of political honesty; it must exhibit that political manhood which is brave and strong enough to do right; it must refuse to sacrifice principle to expediency, the makeshift of shrinking souls and shallow minds.

Sound money Democrats and free silver Democrats, like right and wrong, may be near neighbors, yet the line that separates them is of an awful sacredness—it is no less than the line between honest and dishonest currency.

The sound money Democrats, unalterably opposed to the coinage of silver because they are sure that its adoption would mean repudiation, contraction and ruin are not to be disciplined into the support of General Hardin, who, disregarding the trust for high uses given him, persists against the honor of the country and the interests of all its citizens, in his advocacy of the free and unlimited coinage of silver at the arbitrary rate of 16 to 1. It is not to the sound money Democrats but to General Hardin that the appeal of duty to party and maintaining Democratic supremacy in the state should be made. General Hardin will long live to regret it, otherwise, that the power to command is given to a man through the power to obey; that the first step toward leadership is through a sense of loyalty to the commission he bears; that the first claim to authority over others is to exhibit authority over one's self, wrought out of the power to obey.

JOURNEY SOUTH

The Old Liberty Bell on the Way to Atlanta.

It Will Stop at Various Cities and Towns in Southland.

The Escort of the Venerable Bell on Its Trip Consists of Mayor Warwick, a Special Committee and Large Delegation from the City Officials.

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 5.—The special train bearing the old historic Liberty bell started on its journey to Atlanta at 8 o'clock Friday morning over the Pennsylvania Railroad. In company of the platform car, built especially to carry the bell south, four Pullman cars and a common buffet car. Quite a crowd of people gathered and gave an enthusiastic "Good-by and safe return" to the generated relic. The special train will stop at Pennsylvania company especially to carry the bell to Atlanta, and which is said to be superior to either of those used on similar occasions in the past, consists of a plain platform car, a Pullman passenger car, a car with air-breaks and a pair of coupes. Around the platform a neat railing, constructed so as not to obstruct the view, and on each side are panels bearing the words "Philadelphia" and "Atlanta." In the center of the sides is a panel under which the bell will be enshrined. On the top timber, which runs lengthwise, is inscribed in gilt letters: "1776. Proclaim Liberty."

The escort of the bell on its trip includes Mayor Charles P. Warwick, a special committee and a large delegation from the city council and numerous city officials. "The bell is guarded by four of the tallest city reserve policemen."

WASHINGTON, Oct. 5.—The old liberty bell, of 1776, arrived Friday from Philadelphia, en route to the Atlanta exposition and was given an enthusiastic reception. At 12:17 the special train bearing the bell and its guardians ran into the station and was greeted by military companies, civic patriotic organizations, representatives of the district government and the board of trade, and a large number of citizens. The Washington Marine corps, the U. S. Marine band, marched down Pennsylvania avenue to the railroad station shortly before the arrival of the train, and during the stay of the bell the Marine band played a march on the platform. The September volume of trade is the heaviest since 1892.

New York, Oct. 5.—Broadstreet's Saturday says: "Seasonable weather has stimulated sales of merchandise and increased the prospects of a favorable fall trade generally."

Among the less favorable features is a steady advance in prices of iron and steel with a reaction of 81 per ton at Ogdensburg and Pennsylvania centers.

Chicago sales of dry goods, clothing and shoes are larger than in September, and the September volume of trade is the heaviest since 1892.

At the station were assembled the district commissioners, a committee from the board of trade, the Sons of the American Revolution and a reception committee. The band of the Marine corps and the Marine band played a patriotic air. Mayor Warwick stepped to the station platform and was greeted by President Ross, of the board of district commissioners, who delivered an address of welcome. The band of the Marine corps, and after the reception party, had been given a chance to review the bell the Philadelphia contingent and their hosts were driven to the rooms of the board of trade where a luncheon was served.

CLEVER CONVICT.

Noted Pickpocket and Burglar Now Safe in the Ohio Penitentiary.

COLUMBUS, Oct. 5.—Among the prisoners received from the Ohio State prison, one was "Frenchy" Allen, sent from Toledo for picking pockets. "Frenchy" has served time in at least six penitentiaries. He was released from the Ohio penitentiary in December.

While in the "Pen" he drove a thriving trade by forging the name of Deputy Warden Porter to hall permits, which he sold to convicts at 10 cents a piece. The signatures were so good that Porter himself honored them without question.

A Hanging at Charleston. W. Va.—CHARLESTON, W. Va., Oct. 5.—An African-American soldier was hanged in the jail yard here Friday for the murder of his wife by poison. About 150 persons were admitted to the enclosure. There was no struggle, the fall breaking his neck. This is the first hanging that has taken place since John Brown and his raiders paid with their lives the penalty of their inaction thirty-six years ago.

Linotype Challenge.

BOSTON, Mass., Oct. 5.—Lee Reilly, one of the Linotype operators of the Boston Traveler, has issued a challenge to any Linotype operator on the United States to a six-day contest, five hours to constitute a day's work, for $500, the contest to take place either in Boston or New York.

Not in Arkansas.

LITTLE ROCK, Ark., Oct. 5.—In reference to reports of pulling off the Corbett-Fitzsimmons fight on Arkansas soil, Gov. Clark, in an interview, says: "The Corbett-Fitzsimmons mill can not be brought off on Arkansas territory but I am governor."

A Fatal Shooting.

DETROIT, Mich., Oct. 5.—The world's champion shot putter, John McPherson, fell from one of the lower gates at the new look Friday morning to the look down a distance of 40 feet, and was fatally injured.

BRUSSELS, Oct. 5.—At Friday's session of the International Law Congress it was decided that the next meeting of the congress be held in the United States during the year 1897.

Child Burned to Death.

IRONWOOD, Mich., Oct. 5.—Lee Reilly, 12 months old, was burned to death. The child was poking a hole in a broom, when a spark struck and ignited some cotton in his clothing.

Two Years of War.

LAWRENCE, Wyo., Oct. 5.—Ten inches of snow has fallen here since Thursday noon.

GEORGIA. LYNCHING.

"Yankee" Convict Criminally Assists a Young Girl. Confession and is Riddled with Bullets.

CHATANOOGA, Tenn., Oct. 5.—Thursday night Miss Maggie Henderson, a prosperous farmer residing near Carpenter's station, on the Nashville and Chattanooga road, was shot and killed by the family of her uncle at Coal City, Ga., was foully outraged after being beaten into insensibility by a brutal convict at the Coal City stagecoach. Miss Henderson had come to Coal City to visit the residence of her friends, and was overtaken by the band, who had been allowed by the guards to go about as a trusty. Her throat was terribly lacerated, her skull crushed and body beaten in a manner that blood flowed from the cruel wound. She was removed to the residence of her uncle, where the wounds were dressed and every attention given her.

Thursday it became known that Noel Smith, a convict "trusty," was to be released to the public on account of the horrible deed and excitement can high.

Parties were formed at Coal City, and Friday night, at 7 o'clock, just outside of Coal City, a crowd gathered to witness the execution.

At 8 o'clock 250 armed men demanded the convict of the guard. The mob covered the guards with guns, and said that wanted no trouble, but were going to lynch the criminal. Seeing that the criminal was in the hands of the mob, the lynchers began shooting, riding the stagecoach, and the crowd dispersed. The victim is still unconscious and can not live. It seems that the indignation felt at the guarda is based on the fact that the laws of Georgia does not allow them to give "trusties" the liberties given in this case.
